Forwarding

The international forwarding branch is the natural complement to the shipping agency, and offers its customers a door to door service for forwarding goods by sea, land or rail. It co-ordinates the collection, transport and delivery of goods and assures that the necessary documents have been issued. It also manages customs formalities and oversees the whole operation through a computerized system.

It is able to provide information concerning the whereabouts of the goods and means of transport, in real time. Responsibility, computerization and rapidity are the characteristics which identify this sector.
